The College of Arts and Letters includes the departments of Art and Design, Communication, History and Philosophy, Languages and Literature, Music, Theatre and Dance. Programs in African American Studies, International Studies, and Women's and Gender Studies provide additional minors for all majors on campus. The college also houses the Center of Excellence in the Creative Arts. These academic departments and programs are central to the arts mission of the University. Thinking critical and creativity, communicating effectively, learning about cultural diversity, and developing scholarship and lifelong learning skills are a few of the educational goals courses in the College of Arts and Letters provides.

- h. Information on appropriate contacts, coordinators, room numbers, phone numbers, emails and websites should all be reviewed and updated appropriately. It is also acceptable to use a generic phone or email as sometimes these contacts may change throughout the semester.

Changes to sample plans may be easily made as long as there are no course changes (additions or removals) that were not approved via the appropriate program modification form or new program form in Curriculog.

Edits do not need to be in a specific format. Please utilize the best and easiest format for you. Suggestions for editing would be:

- 1. Copy into word and used tracked changes
- 2. Print and write edits on document and scan and send.

If it is a simple change such as update the phone number under Criminal Justice an email will suffice for that change but more complex or multiple changes, I would prefer the document outlining those updates.
